1. Who was Roger Blake of Pynnhills, Wiltshire whose will was probated 16 Nov 1557 ?

Roger Blake provides a lot of information about the Wiltshire Blake family. He is known to trace down from Robert Blake married to Avis Wallop. Various Pedigree Charts have this couple listed and the ancestral line attributed to Robert Blake. Finding the relevant information is not something that I have particularly looked into although have reproduced the various charts several times. The Pedigree Chart produced by the College of Arms I tend to see as a very interesting rendition of the ancestral line taking this family back to a Richard Blake/Blaake/Blague who lived during the reign of Edward I and Edward II. However, there is a large error in the information given for Richard Blake. The document referred to in the caption concerning a Richard Blake exists in the Calendar of Patent Rolls:

"Licence, until Michaelmas, for Walter le Aketon, merchant of Rouen, to come to England to trade and to carry his wools and merchandise to the usual fairs and markets by the public streets and common ways, provided he do not carry or cause to be carried his wools or merchandise out of the kingdom, nor deal with the Flemings or others of the power of the countess of Flanders in the kingdom, or in any way communicate with them, during the contention between the king and the said countess.

The variety of the names is quite interesting and I have decided to publish all of the names in the newsletter as we inherit from thousands of different names and so could be quite interesting to readers.

Top of the Pedigree Chart created by the College of Arms:

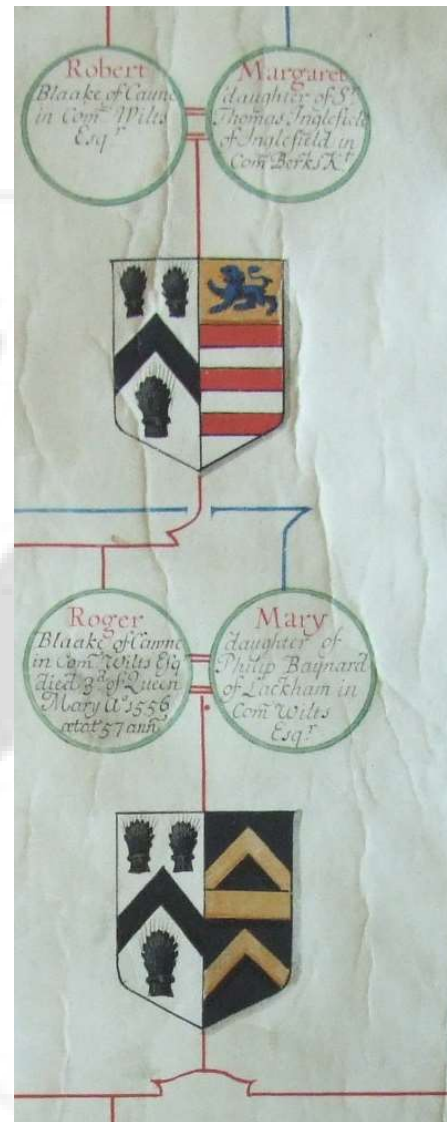

Section 2 below:

Roger, about whom this description is written, is located in the middle of the third chart above. He would be, according to the chart, a 5th great grandson of Richard le Blak at the top of this particular chart. This Chart was originally created in 1690 by Daniel Blake who was descendant of the Blake family at Andover. It is quite possible that Daniel is a descendant of Richard le Blak but likely through a female line which married into the Blake family at Andover. There does not appear to be any evidence that the Blake family at Andover is descendant of the Blake family found at Pinhills, Wiltshire (near Calne) through the male line. As shown in the last newsletter the family line there likely goes back to Robert Blake who left his will in 1521 (Roger died circa 1557 in Wiltshire and his contemporary in the Blake line of Andover would likely be Nicholas Blake of Knights Enham who left his will in 1547. A son William also appears on this Pedigree chart displayed above although somewhat erroneously as his father was Nicholas Blake (and his mother Margaret (possibly Blake and first cousin to Nicholas)) and not Roger Blake as claimed on this chart. But carrying on with Roger Blake and he did leave a will but only mentioned his eldest son and his youngest daughter and eventually I will get to that.

Having now given Roger an ancestral line which does appear to be consistent with other renditions other than the very top of the chart, I would discuss the error at the top of this chart. Beside Richard Blake is a caption on the right side which reads: R Blake gave certain Lands in Essex to the Knights Tempars in the Reign of King Edward I which may be seen by Record in the Tower of London Esc[h]aetr 31 Ed I no 77. However, this particular grant of land was actually made by a Roger le Blake of Madebrook to the Knights Templars 20 Nov 1302. Madebrook is actually the name of a pub presently located in Madeley near Telford in Shropshire. A rather interesting find as there are also Blake lines in that area down to the present. The particular wording of the grant from C143/41/23 (National Archives of the UK): “Roger le Blake of Madebrook to grant land in Eastwood to the master and brethren of the Knights Templars in England, retaining a cottage and land in Thundersley and Eastwood.”

I think we can be satisfied that Richard le Blak came from Rouen, Normandy in or after 1274 to establish a wool market in England. At another time I will have more to say about Richard le Blak.

Getting back to Roger his likely 5x great grandson who married (according to the Pedigree Chart Roger Blaake of Cawne in County Wiltshire Esquire died 3 Queen Mary 1556 at the age of 57 years so born circa 1499 (note the discrepancy with the date of the will below). He is said to have married Mary Baynard of Lackham, Wiltshire which is actually a lucky break in this family as the Baynard family were well established and known and left a number of wills as well. The Blake Museum in Bridgwater also has a Blake Pedigree Chart and I have a hypertext link to the ninth page which shows the similar lineage down to Roger Blake as well. The top of the Blake Pedigree Chart held by the Blake Museum though shows a Robert le Blake of Quemberford as the father of Richard Blaque alias Blake of Wiltshire (namely the person named at the top of the chart produced by the College of Arms and illustrated above). It is an interesting conundrum that can be looked at later but this is a good point to mention it once again.

<https://www.bridgwatermuseum.org.uk/museum-collections/blake-family-tree.htm>

Returning to Roger Blake who married Mary Baynard and this can be seen in Section 3 above of the College of Arms chart. Roger's sister Anna married a brother of Mary Baynard. Roger and Mary have a differing number of children on the two charts. The Blake Museum Chart lists only Thomas (1st son and heir) lived at Pynnelles, Robert who lived at Calne, John who lived at Hillcott, Sybill married to Henry Bull, Joan married to Thomas Goddard, Mary married to Edward Langridge and significantly there isn't a William listed. I would have thought that this chart would also have listed a William if it was correct and on finding this chart my opinion on the placing of a William as a son of Roger on the College of Arms chart is incorrect. However one does note that the College of Arms Chart was produced in 1690 with additions up to the 1730s whereas the chart at the Blake Museum has been produced at a later time possibly the mid 1800s. I am somewhat suspicious on its origins in that it contains a great deal of information on the Somerset Blake family and linking it back to the Calne Wiltshire family. The College of Arms was dealing with a Blake Pedigree which was linking the Hampshire Blake family to the Calne Wiltshire Blake family. Both charts do have similarities which in themselves are quite interesting. There are other charts that I will deal with as one newsletter once again when I complete a project that I am undertaking.

Roger only mentions his eldest son Thomas and his youngest daughter Mary who was not yet married. All other daughters were married and the other sons already had properties where they were living. The Visitation of Wiltshire is helpful in that it lists the parents of Roger Blake namely Robert Blake and Margaret Englefield which is in agreement with both Pedigree Charts. Roger's son Thomas does inherit as shown and did live at Pinhills and his eldest son was named Roger.

The Visitation of Wiltshire 1623, page 81 and can be found on the Internet Archive site.

The Pedigree Chart is headed up by Roger Blake and his wife Mary Baynard. Only the eldest son Thomas is listed on the Blake page followed by Thomas' son Roger married to Wraxed Gastrill and their children who are living in the time of the taking of the Visitation in 1623. Henry (son of Henry Blake of Pinnells and his wife Abigail Stringer) has signed the visitation page.

Roger Blake proves to be a very interesting member of the Calne Blake family in that there are charts and documents linking him back in time and forward in time.

British History Online provides some further information on Roger (<http://www.british-history.ac.uk/report.aspx?compid=18038>):

“Of the small and several freeholds west of Calne's open fields, probably originating in piecemeal grants or sales of demesne pasture of the king's estate or Calne manor, (fn. 59) seven lay south of the Marden. PINHILLS was held in 1407 by John Formage, to whom it had been conveyed by John Patford, the son and heir of David Patford. A share in what was probably the estate was acquired from William York by John Cricklade, the lord of Studley manor, in an exchange in 1461. Pinhills was reputed a manor in 1504, when it was held at his death by John Blake. Although John's heirs were his grandson Richard Dauntsey and his daughter Joan Wroughton, Pinhills apparently passed to his brother Robert Blake (d. 1515) and in the direct line to Roger (d. 1557), Thomas (d. by 1599), Roger, Henry (will proved 1653), and Henry Blake (d. 1660), who devised it to his grandson Henry Blake (d. 1731). Henry held Pinhills in 1698, apparently not in 1728, when it was 157 a. By 1738 Pinhills had been acquired by B. H. Stiles (d. 1739), and it may have been part of the property sold by his nephew and heir Sir Francis Stiles in 1746. It was acquired by Daniel Bull (d. 1791), who in 1769 sold the reversion of it after his death to William Petty, earl of Shelburne (cr. marquess of Lansdowne 1784). Pinhills farm, 135 a., was among lands settled in 1802 by Lord Lansdowne on his son Henry, marquess of Lansdowne from 1809, offered for sale in 1808 by order of Chancery, and bought in 1809 by John, marquess of Lansdowne (d. 1809). John's successor Henry, marquess of Lansdowne, sold the farm, 87 a., in 1813 and bought it again in 1816. Pinhills farm has since belonged to the owners of Bowood House. Pinhills House, the principal house on the estate, stood on a rectangle enclosed by a moat. In December 1644 it was captured by a royalist force, rendered uninhabitable, and perhaps partly demolished. It was probably restored after the Civil War, and in 1728 a large house stood on the moated site. It was later taken down, possibly c. 1771 after Castle House in Calne was enlarged for Daniel Bull. Pinhills Farm, south of the moat, is on an L plan with a north-south range built in the 17th century. In the mid 18th century a west wing was added at the north end of that range, and a new gabled north entrance front was formed.”

Roger Blake is indeed an interesting person to study as he can trace back and forward a number of generations giving a starting point for family research. Finding known descendants of this family and persuading them to do their yDNA would be very interesting.

2. Blake yDNA Study at FT DNA

Having given a lot of thought to the display of the yDNA study at FT DNA for the Blake family, I have concluded that the best way to display the information is based on the hierarchical display beginning with the furthest back in common mutation found in any particular group. This will take some time to work through and I will enter in as much as I have completed thus far. Anyone else wanting to work with me on this design is most welcomed. At 76 I am finding that I have so much work still to do that my time spent on this will not really be adequate other than to point out that studies these days are looking at the path back and where different lines diverged.

Of interest, the work done on the peoples who first crossed from Asia to the Western Hemisphere (people of Beringia) concentrated initially on the mitochondrial lines but gradually the yDNA is also being studied as changes occurred during the time of the Great Ice Age and the thousands of years that followed whilst the people of the Beringia were located on this now sunken area between Asia and North America. The variations in DNA were astounding but thousands of years likely passed during these changes. This, of course, takes us out of the genealogical framework for placing surnames but knowing that these changes occur sometimes over a short time period like a thousand years does make me look differently at the result display.

The group to which my brother's results belong is a good example and I begin there.

A – I-P37

There are four members in this group. One member has tested only P37 but all members of this group are derived for P37. A second member has tested derived for Z180 and the path back is Z185, CTS8584, Z171, S2361, ZS3, S2364, CTS6433, CT1977, Z165, L801, CTS4348, Z161, L702, CTS10057, CTS616, P222, M223, P214, L460, CTS2257, P215, M170. A third member has tested derived for PH151 (this is my brother) and his path back PH151/PH3480, S2742, S2703, FGC7087, L1498, S2639, L161, CTS5375, M423, P37. A fourth member has tested derived for A2293 and his path back A2330, Y14605, Y14611, S2742, S2703, FGC7087, L1498, S2639, L161, CTS5375, M423, P37.

Member one has only tested P37. Member two has tested down to Z180 which has an estimated age of 2900 years before present (ybp) with an error factor of 1200 but no one else has tested with this result yet. This member is not P37 but rather goes back to the parent of P37 which is L460 where the choice is between P214 or P37. However, I have included this member in this group because all members of the group go back to M170 but I am not showing that here. Member three and four diverge at the step following S2742. The age of this haplogroup is said to be 6400 ybp with an error factor of 1800.

This would place members three and four into a similar group who arrived in the British Isles as much as 8,000 to 12,000 years ago and the origin of these two members is said to be the British Isles. That they both have the same surname is possibly amazing and coincidental as they are not known to share ancestry in a genealogical timeframe. All members of the group share P37 as derived and this haplogroup is dated at 20,900 ybp with an error factor of 3500. All are from the British Isles with one stating Ireland and two stating England. They are linked together by P37 and likely their roots extend back 8,000 to 12,000 in the British Isles. They were named the “Deer Hunters” by Ethnoancestry and BritainsDNA (both companies no longer involved in DNA studies) but their name lives on in their naming of these various groups early to the British Isles.

B – I-M253

There are thirteen members in this group. Nine of the members have only tested to M253. M253 has been written up a number of times and the age of this group has been estimated at 17,000 ybp and has an error factor of 4600 with the greatest frequency in Nordic Europe. A few in the group have postulated that this group is descendant of the Calne Blake family which would actually fit into the idea that Richard le Blak was the founder coming from Rouen Normandy in 1274 to set up a wool market in England just over 700 years ago. Countries of origin are variable with two naming Ireland, five naming England, one the United Kingdom and the remainder unknown. Looking at the first twelve markers there is a lot of similarity between all the members and in a seven hundred year period a number of mutations would not be particularly surprising.

Member one has tested to Z59 and the path back is S244/Z58, DF29/S438, L840/M253. Members two to four have only tested to M253. Member five has tested to Z132 and the path back is M253. Members six to ten have tested to M253. Member 11 has tested to BY184774 and the path back is FT258059, BY25107, Y5473, FT4064, CTS11603, L22, S64346, CTS10028, CTS6364, DF29, M253. Member 12 has tested to Y4741 and the path back is Y4734, Y4737, S14887, S7660, P109, Z2338, L22, S6346, Y2592, DF29, M253. Member 13 has only tested to M253.

Member one has tested to Z59 which has an estimated age of 4600 ybp and has an error factor of 1100. Member five has tested to Z132 which is just one step away from Z59 so the age of this group is similar to that of M253. Member 11 has tested to BY184774 and I was not able to determine an age estimate. Member 12 has tested to Y4741 which has an estimated age of 2500 ybp and an error factor of 600. This group Y4341 is said to have expanded around 1350 ybp which I found to be somewhat interesting in that there was a large expansion of Vikings in that time period and Normandy France is suggested to have been a colonial area for the Vikings.

C – I-M223

There are twelve members in this group and eleven have only tested to M223. One member of the group is not part of the rest of the group as he is not descendant of Theophilus Blake. Susan Osborne, co-administrator of the Blake yDNA group, has done an extensive research into the genealogy of Theophilus Blake and should be contacted for any information (email on website) on Theophilus Blake. One member has tested to BY65093 and the path back is Y4715, Y4725, FGC15105, FGC15109, Y4746, Z2054, Z2059, BY1003, FGC15071, CTS616, P222, M223. I did find it interesting that this particular line is similar to the line for Francis Cooke one of the Mayflower passengers. The difference begins at Y4725 which is rather interesting but not necessarily helpful unless the age of the mutation is in a genealogical timeframe (the last thousand years is my definition of a genealogical time frame for location). Finding Theophilus Blake's birthplace has been a goal for Susan Osborne for a very long time. Having seen this particular coincidence I do wonder if looking at the Protestation Returns for 1641/42 might be a worthwhile task. I am not sure that all Blake names have been extracted from that particular set of documents. Z2059 is said to have an estimated age of 4200 ybp and an error factor of 1800. I have not been able to locate information closer to BY65093. I shall consider doing that extraction of Blake from the Protestation Returns as I have a number of the Protestation Returns and acquiring others might not be that difficult.

The one member who does not fit into this group is the last one in the list on the website. There are several areas where he does not match the rest of the group who are known to be descendant of Theophilus Blake but his line does come down from M223. At some point I may divide this group once again into two M223 groups.

This is the largest group of the Blake results and must be subgrouped. One item to always bear in mind looking at the yDNA of a family is that often enough when a line reached an end in the male line if there was a married sister with sons then either her husband or her sons would take the surname of this brother in law/uncle and so the YDNA would not match this line even though they carry the surname. But given the ethnicity in particular areas in particular time frames much of the population probably shared a similar haplogroup and perhaps even down into subclades. This, to my thoughts, would be particularly apt with the R haplogroup which is very large and found all over Europe and the British Isles in our formation days.

One particular section in this large group M269 is known descendants of Richard Blake (aka Richard Caddell of Galway, Ireland). In this case the family at Towerhill and Kiltolla. The work on this group has been done by one of the members and all but one have tested their haplogroup beyond R-M-269. I will begin with this group and give it a sub label of D1 – R-M269. I will create a second group who may be rather similar to this group but have not done extensive testing but believe they descend from Sir Thomas Blake and label it D2 – R-M269. A third group has primarily Irish ancestry and are again similar to the two other groups and I will label them D3 – R-M269. This large group has proven to be a difficulty for me whenever I committed to redoing the layout. The original layout was created by Barrie Blake and was the result of emails back and forth between the members of the groups and himself. I would like to retain that paper trail in some way. A fourth group has English ancestry in the Somerset area of England and will be labeled D4 – R-M269. A fifth group has English ancestry in the Dorset/Wiltshire area and will be labeled D5 – R-M269. A sixth group states descent from Clan Colla and has just one member. For the moment I will retain this as a singleton group named D6 – R-M269. A seventh group is from East Anglia and there is just one member of the group which will be labeled D7 – R-M269.

As I go through M269 I am ambivalent about making changes. They will be mostly superficial changes as my expertise and knowledge in DNA is not that comprehensive where the R haplogroup is concerned. I welcome any one's thoughts on these changes and whether they would like to make suggestions. But deep clade ancestry does appear to be the direction in which we are heading in the DNA world. Looking at surnames is very much in the present and extending back into the past beyond 1500 and genealogical records is only possible because of the great efforts made by particular families to record their lines. In the case of Blake this does permit us to go back to the 1100s-1200s which is very exciting. One should not be disappointed with these results but rather see it is a revealing of the importance of this name to families particularly in the cases where the lines are in common back thousands of years. Amazing that family lines have preserved their yDNA lines through so many hazards of which war, famine, young death and the ice age itself have played such a huge role.

This group will include those who have family folklore that they descend from Richard Blake (also known as (aka) Richard Caddell). The DNA work on this group was done by one of the members and I highly recommend that process as I simply do not have time to get so intensely involved. It is best to also belong to the project for your particular haplogroup. There are six members in this group. One has tested only to R-M269 and the other five have done deep haplogroup clade testing. Numbers 1 and 3 have tested to FGC39974 and the way back is FGC39971, FGC39981, FGC39973, L159, Z255, Z16423, L21, Z290, P312, P310, L51, L23, M269. Numbers 2 and 6 have tested to BY34984 and the way back is FGC39971, FGC39981, FGC39973, L159, Z255, Z16423, L21, Z290, P312, P310, L51, L23, M269. Number 1 and 3 have received one of the two mutations under FGC39971 and Number 2 and 6 have received the second of the two mutations under FGC39971. Number 5 has tested to L159 and the way back is L159, M269. Number 4 has tested to M269. There are other members in the overall study with similar results to this group but I have not written to them to see if they would like to be more involved. I feel that if they are interested they will contact the other group to enquire about the testing that they are doing.

A short history of Richard Blake (aka Richard Caddell) might be interesting at this point. I find this gentleman to be of interest considering he lived in the area where a Roger Blake was located in the early part of the 1300s and making a grant of land to the Knights Templar mentioned above. In the case of this Richard Caddell (later) Blake family there is a theory that their name is derived from the Saxon word Blac. Another theory is that this line is descendant of one of the knights of King Arthur's round table namely Ap-lake. What is known is that in the reign of Henry II (1154-1189), King of England, Richard Blake accompanied Richard de Clare (aka Strongbow), 2nd Earl of Pembroke and one of the Barons of the Welsh Marches. He aided Mac Murchada who had been dispossessed of the Kingdom of Leinster of which he was King. For his assistance, Strongbow was to succeed in Leinster (he married Mac Murchada's eldest daughter). Richard Caddell was part of his entourage which sailed to Ireland to take back the Kingdom of Leinster. Richard went on to build a castle at Menlo near Galway and took upon himself the surname Blake. The surname Blake is common in Ardfry, Ballyglunin, Belmont, Castlegrove, Corbally, Forbough, Frenchfort, Hollypark, Killeencast, Mace, Menlo, Merlinpark, Moorfield, Orancastle, Rahara or Annbally, Renville, (formerly of Lehinch, in Mayo), Tully, Waterdale and Windfield, in the County of Galway; and Ballinafad, Brookhill, Garracloone, Milltown and Towerhill in County Mayo. This particular group working together have been able to trace back to the Blake lines at Towerhill and Kiltolla, Galway. There is a published book for this line but not with me here unfortunately. I will try to remember to put that into the next issue.

Of course the two volume set by Martin Joseph Blake (Blake Family Records) is a must for studying the Blake family of Galway, the Preface is signed Martin J. Blake, Lincoln's Inn, July, 1905.

The second group under R-M269 are named as the descendants of Sir Thomas Blake. I did not prepare the original labels for these groups but will retain them until I step down unless something is brought to my attention to change the title. I believe this is Sir Thomas Blake, second baronet, Menlough, Ireland. He was a famous Irish politician. He was the Mayor of Galway 1637-1638 and died in 1642. He was the son of Sir Valentine Blake, 1st Baronet of Menlo. He is also descendant of Richard Blake (aka Richard Caddell) and Richard was his 7x great grandfather. This group could be blended with the first one might think but when DNA mutations looks back a thousand years there can be markers that will designate different lines coming down from an ancient ancestor. A good project would be to look at the Galway Blake family and see how many descendant lines could be created using the family tree created by Martin Blake and I have entered it into Legacy and at some point I will do a discussion about Richard Blake (aka Richard Caddell) and insert it into the issue.

Both of these lines trace back to Sir Valentine Blake of Menlo with the first group descending possibly from John Blake the fourth son as he was located at Towerhill. The second group descending from Sir Thomas Blake and he was the eldest son of Sir Valentine Blake and his heir.

This group has nine members. Only one actually traces back to Ireland; one from England; one from Scotland and the remainder record as unknown although two have the United States and one Canada. The one for England has Robert Blake of Calne Wiltshire as his ancestor but that group seems to reasonably be Group B-M253. Seven have given their furthestest back mutation as R-M269 and two have done further testing. Number 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9 all test back to M269. Number 2 tested to FGC29424 and the way back is FGC29425, FGC29405, Z344, Z1, Z8, Z7, Z2, Z345, Z30, Z9, L48, Z381, U106, P310, L51, L23, M269. As can be noted the last in common mutation with the Towerhill-Kiltolla is P310 which has an age estimate of greater than 2000 ybp. Both haplogroups subordinate to P310 (U106 and P312) are considered to be Proto-Italo-Celto-Germanic groups from Central Europe. The U106 group is considered to be Proto-Germanic. Number 6 tested to FGC30219 and the way back is FGC30220, FGC30225, FGC30221, Z17817, S5982, S5979, Z17623, A7, S5668, L513, DF13, L21, Z290/Z260, P312, P310, L51, L23, M269. Compared with the Towerhill-Kiltolla, this sample tracks back to M269 in the same mutation line. The age of L21 said to be 4500 ypb and considered to be Atlantic Celtic.

The comments on the ethnicity are from the Eupedia site: Haplogroup R1b \(Y-DNA\) - Eupedia

This is rather interesting and not being an expert on R haplogroup I can only collect information. It would appear though that Number 6 shares some ancestry in common with the Towerhill-Kiltolla group but the time interval is very large.

D3-R-M269

There are fifteen members of this group. All trace back to M269. Locations are variable with most listing Ireland as their place of origin, however Wales and England are also mentioned for two members and six are unknown although one person has listed the United States. Only three members have done further testing of their haplogroup. Members 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 have all tested to M269. Member 8 has tested to U152 and the way back is Z11, DF99, P312, P310, L51, L23, M269 again sharing the common ancient ancestry with the Towerhill-Kiltolla group but the time interval again is very large since the sharing halts at P312 with the age of P312 being thousands of years ago. Member 9 has tested to FT19077 and the way back is BY64262, S27573, FGC11358, S5488, DF21, DF13, L21, Z290, P312, L151, P310, L51, L23, M269. Once again a similar path back thousands of years ago shared with the Towerhill-Kiltolla group. Numbers 9, 10 and 11 have only tested to M269. Number 12 has tested to FT50249 and the way back is BY11436, BY9596, BY9595, FGC5780, FGC3899, DF5, DF25, CTS8704, DF21, L21, Z290, P312, L151, P310, L51, L23, M269. The ancestor of this individual is said to be Arthur Blake and the next two members of this group also are listed as tracing back to Arthur Blake and have tested to M269. Again this set of mutations takes us back to the Towerhill-Kiltolla group in the deep past. Arthur was born in Dublin Ireland and was the son of a John Blake. Nothing further is known at this time.

D4-R-M269

This group has four members and one has stated his ancient ancestor as Humphrey Blake of Plainfield, Somerset. All members have only tested to R-M269. There has always been a thought in the Somerset Blake family that they are descendant of the Calne Blake family. The group I-M253 above also believes they are descendant of the Calne Blake family. The Pedigree Charts that exist for the Blake family do appear to point to an ancient ancestor Richard le Blak and I have introduced the thought that this man was from Rouen, Normandy coming to England to be involved in the Wool Market Trade arriving around 1274. Certainly more descendants of the known Somerset Blake family do need to test to give a clearer picture of the Blake family descendant of Humphrey Blake of Plainfield. Horatio Gates Somerby also tied the Somerset Blake family to the Andover, Hampshire Blake family but again my own line of I-P37 does have a stronger claim plus the information used by Horatio Gates Somerby was a fiction and that has been discussed by me several times. Learning more about the Somerset Blake family has long been an interest of mine.

D5-R-M269

This particular group emerged with the testing done by several different people and a very interested genealogist who was able to place himself and one other member into a known English line that lived in Dorset/Wiltshire area. Since none have done deep ancestry testing the age of this group is unknown although definitely pre 1723. There are four members in this group with three listing their country of origin as England and one unknown. The value of the alleles do correspond to the Somerset family in the first 37 markers but are not closely related. Deep clade testing might be interesting for both of these groups. Again all members have only tested to M269.

D6-R-M269

This is a singleton group with ancestry back to Clan Colla according to the name of the group. The one member has tested to BY23867 and the way back is FT3715, Z16270, Z3000, F24434, Z16267, DF21, L21, Z290, P312, L151, P310, L51, L23, M269. Interesting that this one too is similar to the Towerhill and Kiltolla group but again we are looking at a commonality from L21 back so thousands of years. This individual states that he is Irish.

D7-R-M269

I set this group up a number of years ago and the gentleman has since passed away giving me an extensive genealogical tree of his family in Suffolk. He tested to M269 and so belongs to this extensive group. Comparing him to the Norfolk Blake family they are an entirely different group. I remember John saying to me that he was surprised to see that he was so different from the Swaffham Norfolk Blake group even though he had traced his line back into the 1400s in Suffolk. That was six years ago that we last had an email conversation.

This completes the M269 groups. I begin the second set of R groups and this particular one belongs to the Swaffham Norfolk Blake family.

E-R-M512/R-M198

There are 11 members in this group. Six members have tested to M198. Three members have tested to M512. Two members have tested to M173. This haplogroup formed 14,400 ypb and, in general, members are in Scandinavia, Eastern Europe (including Russia), Central Asia and Russia/Siberia. M198 and M512 are basically the same marker. Members 3 and 4 have tested to M173 and that simply denotes them as R1 as M198/M512 are further down from M173. M198/M512 are dated around 5,800 ybp. All members believe they are descendant of the Swaffham Blake family of Norfolk. All of the members are from the United States or Canada. The Blake family at Swaffham has deep roots in Norfolk. A Jasper Blake was born circa 1614 in Wimbotsham, Norfolk. It is believed by this group that they are descendant of Jasper Blake. There is a Jasper Blake buried in Pine Grove Cemetery, Hampton, Rockingham, New Hampshire, United States. No descendants of this family in England have tested and joined the Blake project at this time.

One member in Unknown at the moment also tests back to M198 but has tested to YP5320 and the way back is YP943, S2857, S2856, L664, CTS4385, M417, M198. The location given for his furthest back ancestor is not Norfolk although the date for this individual is circa 1590 – 1650. I am not actually sure where to place him.

F – T

One member in this group and approximately 10% of native Europeans carry this haplogroup. The earlier administrator did have this group as having Africa/European roots.

G – E

There are five members in this group. Members 1 and 5 have tested to E-M2. Members 2, 3, and 4 have tested to E-M35 and the way back is L796, M215, P2, L499, P147, M96. The ancestor of one member of E-M35 is from Somerset, England.

E-M2 is found in Western Africa, Central Africa, Southern Africa and the African Great Lakes. Using Wikipedia as a reference the clade has been observed among populations in southern Europe and in the Americas. E-M35 is thought to be about 34,600 ybp.

H – G

One member in G haplogroup and he has tested to M201. The origin of this haplogroup is the Near East or Southeast Asia. Some have postulated that this particular haplogroup arrived in England with the Auxiliary Legions from the Roman Empire. It is a fairly ancient haplogroup thought to have arrived in Europe with the spread of farming from the Middle East.

I – R

This group was labeled German Ancestry by the earlier member of the group and there are three members. Member 1 has tested to U152 (traces back to M269). Member 2 has tested to DF99 and the way back is P312, P310, L51, L23, M269). Member 3 has tested to M198 (similar to group E). I did find it interesting that all members of the group are tracing the birth of their furthest back ancestor as prior to 1849. I had not realized that the surname Blake was in Germany although the number of Blake emigrants listed in the 1330-1550 emigrant database coming from Europe exceeds 35 individuals in that time frame.

Working with haplogroups outside of I and R is way out of my depth. Any help with these groups would be greatly appreciated and the same really for haplogroup R as my knowledge these days is mostly restricted to haplogroup I just because that is my father's haplogroup. Any assistance with these groups, as mentioned, would be greatly appreciated. At 76 years of age my time working with this newsletter is probably limited and I may not report on the haplogroups again until Issue 1 next year.

I did not do any work on the group labeled as X-Blake ancestry not in direct line. Definitely that would be a group that members of this group would have to inform me if they wished to pursue being part of any of the other groups.

3. Andover, Hampshire, England, Parish Registers - Baptisms

Andover, Hampshire, England has often been said to be the “home of the Blakes” when I have been writing to people in Hampshire through the years. I would say that Calne, Wiltshire perhaps has a stronger hold on that particular title although there are a number of other areas in England where the Blake family has been for centuries. When I decided to transcribe the Parish Registers of Andover I was surprised to find that yes there are a number of Blake entries but there are far more Blake entries in Parish Registers in other parts of England as mentioned. In this issue, I will publish the baptisms for Blake in the Parish Registers. These records are taken from fiche which have scans of the original parish registers. The registers for baptisms begin in 1588 and have provided me with a lot of details on the Blake family in Andover in the late 1500s and into the 1600s/1700s. Eventually I hope to complete my project of transcribing these Parish Registers for St Marys Andover beyond the early to mid 1700s.

Baptismal Registers commenced in 1588 and I will start publishing these transcriptions for Andover.

4. Andover, Hampshire, England Parish Registers- marriages

I will publish the marriages for Blake in the Parish Registers of St Marys Andover. These records are taken from fiche which have scans of the original parish registers. The registers for marriages begin in 1587 and have provided me with a lot of details on the Blake family in Andover in the late 1500s and into the 1600s/1700s. Eventually I hope to complete my project of transcribing these Parish Registers for St Marys Andover beyond the early to mid 1700s.

Marriage Registers commenced in 1587
