- 1. The descendants of John Pincombe of South Molton circa early 1500s

Although my original intent for this issue of the Newsletter was to look at Richard Pincombe who lived at Bishops Nympton by the late 1500s, a talk by another researcher (Dr Joe Flood) has brought me back to an interesting bit of folklore that I read in one of the history books on North Devon talking about the Pincombe family of South Molton being the founders of the Pincombe family later found at Barnstaple. I have not really looked at the records for the Pincombe family in some areas of Devon where they principally lived and so decided that I would switch to a look at the John Pincombe line found at South Molton in the early 1500s and said to be descendant of the first Pincombe to come to North Molton with Lord de la Zouch likely following the Battle of Bosworth Field in 1485.

Dr Flood enters into this discussion because he has in his COAD one-name study a Pincombe who does not match COAD and the reason given was a change of name in the early 1800s (a family breakup occurred where the male line was PINCOMBE and the female line was COAD and the children and mother reverted to her maiden name. However, the yDNA of this line matches the PINCOMBE line found at Bishops Nympton in this century (one of my cousins has tested for this line and he matches descendants of John Pincombe and Mary Charly/Charlie and they were, of course my cousin's third great grandparents and my fourth great grandparents. Listening to him speak and he did mention the Pincombe line I decided it really was time to look into that particular instance more thoroughly.

The first record of the Pincombe family line at North Molton was in the 1620 Visitation of Devon (Saint-George, Henry, Sir, 1581-1644; Lennard, Samson, d. 1633, Camden, William, 1551-1623; Colby, Frederic Thomas, 1827-1899, ed; College of Arms (Great Britain), 1872, London:

THE VISITATION OF THE COUNTY OF DEVON.

The two images are from pages 230 and 231 of the College of Arms publication of the Visitation of Devon 1620. The book has been digitized by Google Books and is out of copyright. The Pincombe family of South Molton were the only line to actually create a coat of arms and use it so far as it is known by the editor of this Newsletter. The head of the chart shows an unknown Pyncombe living at North Molton having come there with Lord de la Zouche around the time of the beginning of the reign of Henry VII. The Visitation is signed by William Pyncombe and it is likely that this is the William Pyncombe of South Molton and East Buckland who is living in 1620 and 54 years of age having been Coroner of Devon for 14 to 15 years in 1620. William Pincombe, his father, is also listed (he was married to Emote Snowe) and the son of Thomas Pyncombe who lived at Filleigh and East Buckland. All of these villages are close together and I did travel through West Buckland to East Buckland and then past Filleigh to South Molton and then to Bishops Nympton. The tax records for South Molton are helpful in distinguishing the families all mentioned at South Molton in this Visitation. The 1544/45 Subsidy and the 1581 Subsidy are probably the most interesting at this point in the discussion.

There is a widow at North Molton named Alice Pencombe on the 1545 Subsidy who could possibly be the wife of the Unknown Pyncombe who arrived at North Molton with Lord de la Zouch in 1485 (if he was a young page). Thomas who has left his will in 1544 is possibly the husband of Joane Pencombe; he is listed on the 1544 Subsidy at East Buckland. The will for Thomas did not survive the bombing of the Devon Record Office in the Second World War. According to the Chart living at South Molton on the 1544 Subsidy are Christopher and John with John having the largest subsidy. The Visitation appears to indicate that John is the elder of these two brothers (no dates are given). On the 1581 Subsidy there is a William listed at East Buckland (Thomas was listed on the 1544 Subsidy). Although the visitation does mention that this William is of South Molton and East Buckland I have yet to find any other reference for William at South Molton. I think it is likely appropriate to assume that the South Molton family was primarily John and Christopher and their descendants. On the 1581 Subsidy Christopher, John, John Junior and John Senior are all living at South Molton. It is likely appropriate to assume that Christopher and John are father and son and that John Junior and John Senior are also father and son with the brother of Christopher also named John (father of John Senior) now deceased. John (son of John junior), student at the Middle Temple, does not appear to be on this Subsidy and that is consistent with the times as he is a student in London so not occupying land that is taxed in Devon and with his grandfather and father still living has not received an inheritance.

The two earlier researchers on the Pincombe-Pinkham one-name study did create a chart for South Molton. The top of the chart has John who is listed as one of the sons of the unknown Pyncombe who came to North Molton which matches the Visitation. Next two sons for this John named Christopher and John. Then only John is shown as having a descendant namely another John. The visitation does show a son John (son of John) (and he is listed as John Senior in the Subsidy) and his son was listed as John Junior in the Subsidy and on the Visitation Chart. There may have been a Richard but he is not listed in either Chart at South Molton but he is said on this genealogy chart created by the earlier researchers to be the father of the John who married Amy Doddridge but is likely the John Junior on the Subsidy. One notes that the date on the chart for John (nephew of Christopher) is 1526 and for Richard his supposed son 1540 so is unlikely to be correct.

John son of John Junior and Amy Doddridge is then listed as marrying and having a number of descendants in the 1600s at South Molton on this chart. This John was a student in London in 1620 as shown on the visitation. He is said, according to the genealogy chart above, to have married Mary Carew and lived at South Molton with children Elizabeth, Richard, Gertrude, Mary and Joan. On the updated Visitation of 1620 with additions there is more information for this John Pincombe. I do have a few problems with this visitation. I do not think that Unknown Pyncombe had two sons named John. Possibly the name of the third son was William but I can not find the reference which convinced me of that.

This particular Visitation was then updated although it does appear that a couple of errors crept into the final revised document. In the original Unknown Pyncombe is listed as having three children – Thomas, John and unknown. The unknown does not have any children listed. Thomas has only his eldest son William listed and John has two sons listed Christopher and John.

This updated Visitation of 1620 document (next page) was digitized by Microsoft and was found on page 594 of The Visitations of the County of Devon: Comprising the herald's visitations of 1531, 1564, and 1620 with additions by Lieutenant-Colonel J.L. Vivian (1895: Exeter).

This Chart has more information on John Pincomb (son of John Pincombe and Amy Dodridge) who completed his schooling in London and was a Barrister of the Middle Temple who died before 1657. He married Mary daughter of Sir John Carew of Crowcombe. The children mentioned for this couple (John Pincombe and Mary Carew) were Elizabeth, Gertrude, Mary and Richard. No children are listed; No marriage is recorded for this Richard Pincombe who lived at Poughill with his family. He left a will dated 19 Nov 1656 with his mother Mary named as executrix along with his cousin John Doddridge. Both renounced admon and the three sisters were granted admon of his will 10 April 1658.

Richard, it is noted, does not name a wife or any children and there have been a few trees which have erroneously attached themselves to this Richard. At the time of the death of Richard this family had moved to Poughill and were no longer living in South Molton.

What a Visitation Chart does is tell you the more famous members of a family; it does not generally list all the members of the family although sometimes it does which is more luck than anything as far as I can tell. For that reason I continue to hunt out the parish records for Pincombe at South Molton and my next step will be to read the fiche for South Molton which, unfortunately, do not commence until 1601. The well known public records do not appear to have information on this Pincombe family of South Molton after the death of John Pincombe, Barrister of the Middle Temple who died by 1657 and his family lived at Poughill. This distance is 46 miles or 74 kilometres. Looking at the map there is a slightly more direct route but it would have involved crossing several rivers whereas there was likely a bridge at Bideford (or at least fordable by a horse) so suspect that the distance is probably the full 74 kilometres even in the 1600s.

South Molton Baptisms

Christopher son of John Pinckombe was baptized 2 Apr 1603

The first Pincombe baptism located in the fiche was for a Christopher Pinckombe son of John Pinckombe. This is on the genealogical chart but with a son John to Christopher rather than vice versa. One could estimate the age of John as being born between 1550 and 1580. Looking at the Visitation and the reference to unknown Pyncombe coming with Lord de la Zouch to North Molton at the start of the reign of Henry VII (1485-1509). No information is available on the unknown Pyncombe although given his presence with Lord de la Zouch who was attainted after the Battle of Bosworth Field which basically is the beginning of the reign of Henry VII one can assume he was either a young page or perhaps one of the soldiers pledged to Lord de la Zouch. Looking then at the age of 14 to perhaps 30 but could also have been older given that he did receive quite a bit of property in the North Molton area. But like Lord de la Zouch one can assume that he had supported Richard III at Bosworth Field. The children of the unknown Pyncombe could have come with him (but I am dubious of that) or are born after 1485. There were three children according to the various visitations (one of which names them as John, William (need to locate this reference) and Thomas). Thomas died in 1544 leaving behind a widow who did not die until 1563.

At this point her will mentions grandchildren and of course her children (William, John, Alice, Richard and unknown female) are all born by 1544 when Thomas has died. The eldest son, William, of this Thomas died as an elderly person in 1602 and as the first born of five would have been born by at least 1534 although could be slightly later. I tend to think that the unknown Pycombe who came with Lord de la Zouch was a young person (mid-teen) who would have married by 1500 (and there is a possibility that the name of his wife was Alice as there is a widow on the 1544 subsidy named Alice at North Molton). There were likely at least four children for this couple – John, Thomas, William and Margret but their births/baptisms are pre Parish Registers for North Molton which do begin very early. So a fluid timeline does establish itself for the descendants of the unknown Pyncombe mentioned on the 1620 Visitation. The John who is the father of the Christopher Pinckombe baptized 2 Apr 1603 could be one of the Johns in the hierarchy at South Molton since Christopher was baptized there but thus far I have not found anything further to give a lead on that individual.

The family lore that the Barnstaple/Bideford Pincombe family were descendant of the South Molton is quite interesting and I will also have a look at the Parish Registers for Barnstaple and Bideford.

Sep 1625 and their seven children all appear to be baptized at South Molton. Henrie was said to be the son of a George Pyncombe with wife Dorothis and that George a son of a William Pincombe and Margaret Gregoire (both of these families being at North Molton).

I believe that more indepth research is needed on these records so will devote the discussion in the next issue to this same topic.
