1. Protestation Returns for Pincombe in Devon and Somerset

The Protestation Returns of 1641 are an interesting "census" of an area. In the case of Somerset and Devon with the loss of the wills probated only in the diocese they provide a glimpse into life in 1641 in the various areas of Devon and Somerset. The wills being lost in the bombing of Exeter during World War II has proven to be a huge loss in many ways although genealogy researchers in the 1800s often made précis descriptions of some of the more interesting wills (i.e. the person was interesting perhaps to clients or just known in an area). Then there were the people who wrote books about their families and they too produced a précis of wills that interested them at the time and especially handy when this was prior to World War II. This has been helpful to me in my quest for more information on the various Pincombe family members. However, the 1500s has still not been solved for this family. A search on Find My Past reveals 33 results between 1500 and 1580 plus another 2,333 if you select name variants with a lot of the entries being from England and Wales - Published Wills and Probate Indexes 1300-1858. Add in just the 20 years from 1580 to 1600 and there are another 1996 results with again the Wills and Probate Indexes providing many many entries. This is an all encompassing search so also includes the last name P. and there are Pincombe records from all over England in this time frame with various spellings. I think perhaps I will do the search with some of the specific spellings in mind. It is something I have thought about doing for a while. Along with the Protestation Returns of 1641 and the available wills plus the subsidies of the 1500s I might get an even better picture of the Pincombe family in this vital time when they are moving out from North Molton into nearby parts of Devon (and indeed into Somerset and Cornwall on occasion which are of interest to me).

An interesting picture actually as the surname spellings that predominate for me in this time period of 1500-1580 are Pencomb or Pencombe or Pyncomb or Pyncombe or Pincombe.

The last entry Pyncombe proved to be interesting one with a number of duplications but of the 30 results 28 were at North Molton and two at Pilton. Pilton is near Barnstaple and the distance from North Molton to Pilton via present day roads is 15 miles or 24 kilometres. This particular entry is from the banns book and the marriage register for Maryan Pyncombe to Roger July 29 Sep 1577. No other details are given (she could be a widow with the surname Pyncombe or it could be her birth surname).

The Pencombe entry with five results with three at North Molton, one at East Buckland and one at Tawstock.

The Pencomb entry at Roborough Devon was most interesting for a Thomas Pencomb in 1578 from the Devon Wills Index.

The Pincombe entry with seven results had just one at North Molton, two at Bideford, two at Chittlehampton, one at Tawstock and one at Ilfracombe.

I have often thought about looking at the results in Find My Past in this way and I believe I will work away at that quest today. I also did a search on the time period of 1420 to 1500 and no records of any of the spellings above were found on Find My Past. A similar search between 1400 to 1500 on the Discovery Catalogue at Kew did not reveal any Devon, Somerset or Cornwall results for any of these surnames but there were 21 results for Pencomb/Pencombe but all for the area in Herefordshire known as Pencombe Court.

Earlier Charts of Pincombe/Pinkham

I do have sixteen earlier Charts of the Pincombe/Pinkham families of Devon and some emigrant lines to the Royal Colonies now the New England States of the United States of America. All of this information has been very interesting. It was collected after the 1960s but there were individuals who gave information to the two researchers Galen Pinkham and Dr Richard Pinkham MD who, being adults in that time frame, were likely born before World War II or close to it thus having a knowledge of their Pincombe families in their areas. This is always valuable research and I shall always treasure these charts.

The two researchers also put in time in the repositories collecting information where possible and all of that is also greatly appreciated and was a great inheritance for the Pincombe/Pinkham project.

I spent the morning extracting using specific spellings that I have noted above but having done that I also noted a new spelling when I was going through one of the registers and have now added in that spelling because it is obviously (because of the record) another spelling that was used by this family not so much that they wrote it down that way but rather the priest has recorded this spelling in his registers. Although my Pincombe family does appear to read and write back into the at least 1600s not everyone would have been able to correct any spelling of their name. I do know that was a bit of a touchy point in my line as they spelled their family name quite specifically and attempted to correct any mis-spellings including the census here in Canada but that doesn't always come to fruition; spelling is what it is and once written down it is difficult to change although now we are pretty much set in stone here in our century that wasn't the case in the 1800s or even into the 1900s.

Now that I have extracted all this information from Find My Past I am toying with the idea of reading the registers for Pilton, Barnstaple, Tawstock, Ilfracombe, Bideford and Kings Nympton (and continuing to read South Molton and Chittlehampton as I have been doing this week). I have transcribed Bishops Nympton, North Molton, Lankey and parts of Rose Ash. Although my own line seems secure as I take it back into Bishops Nympton I am always on the alert for any record that might add to or change what I do know. In that they did leave Prerogative Court of Canterbury (PCC) wills which still exist that has been helpful as well as the wills in the Inland Revenue Books. I also found transcripts of the wills held by the Society of Genealogists made prior to World War II which was an exciting discovery back in 2013. That let me sort out the death date for my 4x great grandfather John Pincombe. Note: (T) The item was from a transcript; the original document was not seen by me.

I shall spend time today matching up this information with the charts produced by the earlier researchers. Solving the mystery of the Pincombe family in the 1500s would definitely be a step forward and delving into the South Molton branch has proven to be a good starting point because the families that were first there either daughtered out or moved on (Poughill being one of the locations that they moved to). My own branch at Bishops Nympton appeared to be there from the end of the 1500s into the 1900s although my own direct line emigrated to Canada in 1850/1851 (John Pincombe married to Elizabeth Rew and John was the son of Robert Pincombe and Elizabeth Rowcliffe).

Finding that John Pincombe perhaps of Barnstaple was a merchant travelling to LaRochele France in the late 1500s was quite fascinating. I had not seen that record before. Have I captured all the spellings though? I think reading some of these early registers will let me see that. Access at Find My Past to the scans of the early registers has been quite fantastic and easier to read than on my fiche.

I always thought in the back of my mind that I needed to look at the Protestation Results for Devon (all of it) since the charts produced by the earlier researchers had included a number of places in Devon other than the north west which was where I had found most Pincombes in my searches.

The chart that I produced when we were in Salt Lake City in 2008 from The Devon Protestation Returns, 1641 ((Indexed by T.L. Stoate) and edited by A.T. Howard was privately published at Bristol (1973) in 2 volumes (v, 555 p.) the following:

This Excel chart was produced as one page initially but I extracted these several sets and discussed the reasoning behind not including them in the first set of results – Burcombe, Tincombe and other.

I have had the Tincombe/Tyncombe surname spelling mentioned to me before but had not really looked into that at all. Once completed I will work with the older charts (they do have input from people in the various areas living in Devon) and the parish registers to see what I can find. I think it was a necessary step. I recorded no surnames at Roborough and St Giles in the Woods in Fremington Hundred just so that I would remember that I had read the original return on the government website. I had expected to find the family there perhaps although did not have a fixed idea that I would.

Some of the Exeter parishes I am unable to bring up on the website so may miss a few Tincomb/Tincombe entries as they seem to center in that area of the south (32 entries for this surname found). The next step is to see if this is the same family as Pincombe. I suspect it is just coincidental that the spelling is so close as the writing of the surname Tincomb has a most distinct T at the beginning. I note on line that the meaning for this particular name derives from Teigncombe in Chagford (Devon). Teigncombe takes its name from the River Teign with comb being old English for Valley. Interesting really and I suspect I will just put this data aside as not being part of the Pincombe/Pinkham family study. Interesting Gidleigh is just under three kilometres from Chagford and the density of Tincombe in this area is the highest. The distance from Chagford to North Molton is 58 kilometres. Thus far I am pretty content with this bit of sleuthing and will continue to not include the Tincombe/Tincomb family in my research.

That leaves me with 47 Pincombe and other spellings in my list. The next set to examine is Dencombe/Dinecombe/Bonicomb/ Buncombe/Burcombe to see if I can find them in the applicable register namely - North Tawton/Lifton/Okehampton/Hemyock. My original list from Stoate's book at Salt Lake City gave me 25 Pincombe entries so I have acquired a few that I did not have before which might be helpful in understanding the Pincombe family of North Molton as they moved away from North Molton into the surrounding area of Devon.

Two members of this group have the surname Pincam and in the Find My Past records Pinkham is one of the surnames selected as a variant so my first mention of Pinkham Edmund Pincam and Richard Pincam of Yarnscombe, Hartland. Yarnscombe is south west of North Molton and the route has one going from North Molton to South Molton to Chittlehampton to UMBERLEIGH and hence to Yarnscombe a distance of 23 kilometres. Find My Past has 35 hits for this surname in Devon in a limited time period. Certainly members of the Pincombe family were using the Pinkham surname in London in the late 1600s (or it was being used for them; hard to say). An interesting survey looking at all of the Protestation Returns. A remarkable range of surnames although some surnames definitely dominated some villages/towns. The surname containing comb/combe had a number of variations perhaps because there are many valleys in Devon along the many rivers.

In the case of Pincombe I am still suspicious that this is a surname that came to Devon perhaps from Herefordshire as mentioned on the Visitation of 1620 (arriving at the beginning of the reign of Henry VII (1485)). Because this family appears to have used the Pencombe surname initially there was a place name of Pencombe in Herefordshire. The use of the old English combe was probably pretty common across England when surnames began. Although there were not huge numbers of surnames with the Combe as part of it but there were more than a few.

I have now removed Burcombe/Buncombe as a free standing surname with 11 hits 1570 to 1630 and a total of 1497 records on Find My Past. They appear to be a Hemyock family. The distance from North Molton to Hemyock is 55 kilometres. I will not research this family since their surname is consistently spelled Burcombe (occasionally Buncombe) in the registers.

I have also excluded the Dinecomb/Bonicomb/Podicomb families. With Podicombe likely the Poddicombe/|Puddecombe/Puddicombe family at Iddesleigh. Iddesleigh is to the south of North Molton about 36 kilometres. The register at Iddesleigh has a number of old entries for this family. The Dinecomb (likely Dunscombe) and the Bonicomb (also likely Dunscombe) do have hits at Lifton but the registers only go back to 1653 so not helpful. North Molton to Lifton is 76 kilometres.

That leaves me with 39 Pincombe entries and derivatives to observe including a Philip Dencombe at High Bickington which could be Dunscombe and I will have to determine that searching the registers. I have acquired 13 new mentions of the surname by going through the Protestation Returns. Although it seemed like a huge task initially it went quickly and I shall now move forward with looking at the charts from the earlier researchers in light of these new records.

I worked on the Pincombe entries that I found in the Protestation Returns eliminating another couple that were interesting in their spelling but not likely Pincombe/Pinkham family members. I am left with about a dozen new items that I did not discover when I checked Stoate's book in 2008 in Salt Lake City. Having the original images available on the parliamentary website is really a bonus.

I will continue to work on these new items as I check the Subsidies for each of the villages/towns and also the donations given to the rebuilding of St Pauls Cathedral in 1687 as there is an extensive set of those documents also online. Along with the parish registers I may yet get a more complete picture of the Pincombe/Pinkham families in the 1500s.

I think I have eliminated all the ones that could have been Pincombe but are free standing surnames. I want to look at the charts as I work my way through the names. Some of the charts do go back to the 1500s and it will help me to place the Pincombe family members known to be in distinct places mostly by the wills that were left in the 1500s (they may not have always signed the Protestation Return where they later signed their wills however as people did move about).

I also want to look up the Somerset Protestation Returns as there were Pincombes in Somerset in that time frame but not very many. It was primarily a Devon name well into the 1800s although a few did go to London in the 1700s.

I am most fortunate to have a CD of the Protestation Returns and Lay Subsidy Rolls 1641-42 for Somerset which was produced by B.D. Welchman of Howard's and Stoa's Publication. Reviewing the index I do not find any of the spellings. Hence, one is left to conclude that my notice of the name in various publications must have been as visitors to particular places so perhaps they were relatives of Somerset people (Elizabeth Rew, my 2x great grandmother married to John Pincombe was from the Selworthy, Somerset area).

One wonders if I should do a similar search in Cornwall Protestation Returns and perhaps a glimpse at places along the border might be a good use of my time.

At Morwenstow on the Protestation Return I found a Pincombe family using the Pencome and Pincom spelling – Mathusela Pencome and Anthony Pincom. The Parish Registers show a William Pincombe with his wife Margaret baptizing six children at Morwenstow – 16 12 Methuselah, 1614 Johan, 1617 Nicholas, 1619 Katherine, 1621 John, 1622 Marie. The marriage entry for William Pincombe and Margaret Borrowe 21 Oct 1611 at Morwenstow. No record was found for an Anthony Pincom at Morwenstow. Morwenstow is located just inside the Cornwall border near Devon and 67 km from North Molton.

Repeating the spellings above, I did not find any other Pincombe/Pinkham entries in Cornwall searching the Online Parish Clerks website and selecting Protestation Returns. No entries located at Launceston, St Mary Magdalene, Lewannick or Callington.

Creating a Google search for Pincombe in Cornwall yielded mostly my entries on my blog and other research portals where I have added Pincombe material. One might wonder why Morwenstow? Interestingly it is just 11 miles to Poughill where a known Pincombe family was living that had originally been in South Molton and before that North Molton.

In the next issue I will compare these results with the sixteen charts that were produced by the earlier researchers to see what sort of linkages I can find. I will continue seeking out information on Pincombe between 1485 and 1600 in order to put together a dossier on items that pertain to this family to assist in reconstructing the family as it moved out from North Molton in the early 1500s.
